VINTAGE SPREE LEADS TO FASHION SCHOLARSHIP AT FAST

< Back to stories

The saying "out with the old in the new" took on a fashionable and sustainable meaning with an intimate, lovingly curated vintage sale at the home of Palazzi founder and President Gabriella Ganugi. A lifetime of a love for fashion and the unique styles and flair of two Florentines came together in a special weekend sale that took place on February 27-28. The private collections of Gabriella and Marianna Caporali included pieces from Italian designers such as Prada, Cavalli, Ermanno Scervino, as well as international names Helmut Lang, Burberry, and Louis Vuitton. The selection wasn't only limited to luxury brands, boutique names such as Comptoir de Cottonier, cashmere pieces, Miss Sixty and Abercrombie & Fitch rounded out Vintage Spree with choices for everyone. Palazzi faculty and staff and their family members, friends, strangers, and neighbors stopped by during the sale's open hours from 12 noon to 8 pm. Gabriella's Borgo Stella home was transformed into a veritable vintage boutique where guests tried on and purchased beautiful pieces, refreshments were served throughout the day, and most importantly, buyers contributed to an important mission of FAST the school of fashion accessories studies and technologies: sustain the communities and resources in the fashion environment in Florence. Funds raised from clothing sales will go to a fashion studies scholarship at FAST. Applicants will be asked to submit a motivational essay along with the scholarship application form and the chosen recipient will be involved in sustainable projects throughout their studies in Florence. The opening of the new scholarship page on the Palazzi website will be announced soon. Please check with us soon for detailed information on available scholarships and application processes.
